Grief bites

Fear

You are likely to feel fearful and anxious. This is very natural.

Your familiar world has been turned upside down and you are likely to feel you have little control over your life or over the thoughts and feelings churning inside you. Feeling out of control is likely to leave you feeling vulnerable and afraid. But you will probably notice that as you get used to coping, and start to get on top of life again, you will become more confident and less afraid.

Just for FUN!

You will find a table quiz on the tables. Maybe ask someone you don't know to join you/your team?
